

HELPFUL WEBSITES FOR GOING GREEN

www.bioneers.org

“Founded in 1990, Bioneers is a nonprofit organization that promotes practical environmental solutions and innovative social strategies for restoring the Earth and communities.” From the Bioneers mission statement.

www.earth911.org

Guide to local resources - recycling pollution prevention and how to help the environment.

www.dmachoice.org

Website to remove your name from catalogue and other junk mail lists.

www.ecoliteracy.org

Dedicated to teaching sustainable living with particular focus on schools.

www.ewg.org

Lots of helpful information such as a list rating the pesticide content of commercially grown vegetables, safety ratings for cosmetics, a list of chemicals toxic to pets, plus updated news on issues of environmental concern.

www.greenpeople.org

Directory of eco-friendly and holistic health products, including pet supplies, home and garden products, and a search engine for community support agriculture groups;

www.green-trust.org

Covers many topics about energy conservation.

www.womenandenvironment.org.

Women's voices for the earth to "increase awareness of the connection between human health and health of the environment. Recipes for safe cleaning products.

www.harrybarkder.org

Pet products such as biodegradable poop bags, hemp toys and dog beds filled with recycled material.

Regional Websites

www.apeiron.org

Rhode Island based center for sustainable living.

www.connectingforchange.org

Website for Bioneers by the Bay, an annual conference of environmental, industry and social justice leaders who offer models for bringing back our planet and its population to be held October 24 -26, 2008 in New Bedford, MA.

www.energy.ri.gov/index.php

Rhode Island Office of Energy Resources

www.marioninstitute.org

A non-profit organization sponsoring programs that explore ideas for improving the greater world and the connections of those living in it.

wwwnofari.org

List of organic farms in Rhode Island

Commercial Websites (not endorsed by ALN)

www.eartheasy.com

Website with many ideas to help with sustainable living.

www.sustainableisgood.com

Where to find safe toys, ideas for better packaging, other eco resources and ideas.